
The Transitional Medicaid program provides up to twelve (12) months of Medicaid coverage for parents and children whose Medicaid is ending because:

- ❖ earnings from their job or an increase in child support puts them over the income limits for regular Medicaid; and/or
- ❖ Medicaid can no longer give them a deduction for earnings from a job.

You do not have to apply for this program. The Medicaid office will review your case to see if you qualify.

Get Medicaid for Six Months

To get Transitional Medicaid for six (6) months, parents and children must:

- ❖ have been enrolled in Medicaid for at least three (3) of the past six (6) months;

- ❖ Also, children must meet the age requirements.

Get Medicaid for Six More Months

To qualify for six (6) more months of Medicaid coverage, these additional requirements must be met.

- ❖ Your family's earnings must be below the limits for your family size;
- ❖ A parent cannot end his or her employment without "good cause"; and
- ❖ Within ten (10) days, a parent must report to Medicaid any changes in earnings from work, when anyone moves into or out of the home, and changes in child care payments.
